The most impressive city I have ever been to was Rome. The modern city is impressive because it is very big and busy. But also, it has many historical places and ruins that are also very impressive. When I was in Rome I saw new things every day which amazed and impressed me. I was only there for a few days, but I think if I had stayed longer I could have still found new and impressive things every day for a long time.

The most amazing city I have visited was Rome. The city is huge and would be impressive even without its epic history. But it was the treasure trove of fascinating archeological sites that left me amazed. It seemed that every time we turned a corner, there was a remnant or ruin of Rome's dramatic history. The modern city is built on top of the ruins of the ancient city, and there are even underground tours that enable you to look at the incredible historical sites. With all of this history, I think Rome must certainly be one of the most impressive cities in the world.
